Why

We Sell Only
GOODYEARS

IT is true that all tires are not alike.
And it's obvious that all tires are not the same value. That's why we sell Goodyears only.

We've watched Goodyear Tires in use for a good many years. We're satisfied that they give longest mileage. We're sold on Supertwist and the All-Weather Tread. And Goodyear gives us a complete line of tires to meet all needs.

It's true we don't make quite as much money per tire. But we sell a lot more tires.

We have your size and type.

Sargon is here

The advance in medical science during recent years has been amazing. One important discovery after another has been made. Century old theories have been exploded and thrown into the discard.

SARGON has taken full advantage of this modern research and is a new and revolutionary product. Over two and one half years of laboratory research by one of America's greatest bio-chemists were required to perfect it.

GARNET IS GOOD

It is a great satisfaction to farmers generally through the West to know that Garnet wheat has come through the stiffest tests with flying colors and has been approved by British and continental millers and bakers.

This only confirms the conviction of many local experienced farmers that this early maturing hard wheat, would prove a most valuable asset in the wheat producing areas, especially where early maturing was a vital factor. The tests which have been made have been in competition with Marquis, which is the world's highest standard wheat.

Some tests indicate that Garnet may command a higher price at times than Marquis because of its superior blending qualities. And there is a further recommendation from millers overseas, that Garnet be shipped separately under its own name, for easy identification. This finding in connection with a wheat which until now, has not commanded an assured status, will mean a great deal to those districts of Alberta whose greatest problem has been to get wheat matured before frost danger.

Nearly half the people in Japan are reached by electric lighting service.

VULCAN BAND PLANS ALL YEAR PRACTICE

Encouraged by their success at Calgary the local band is determined to do still better and to this end will keep up practice and so secure more trophies next year.

Six bands took part in the recent much credit on the Vulcan organizapractice after being idle twelve months. Mr. Thaviu was adjudicator.

Mr. Weale, the local bandmaster,

SPORT ITEM

On a certain evening last week two of our prominent citizens well known in connection with sport, agreed to race for a give quantity ((that's no right—one party had to do the "giving"). One of the participants being built on greyhound lines was the favorite, but although the other is of the "heavy duty type" he also has his admirers. A large and enthusiastic audience greeted the runners and the result was declared a dead-heat although one of the supporters of the favorite claimed his man had won because he had his tongue out. According to some of the heavy gamblers the race was fixed so that the ante would be raised for next time, but as to this we have no reliable information.

Christine Pasgat, of the local hospital staff, has returned to Vulcan after spending part of her vacation in Edmonton with her sister and a few days in Calgary with friends.

A good average fruit crop is reported from Eastern Canada and B.C.

freshments were served and Mrs. Hat-their vacation in Vancouver.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Mullins were visiting in Edmonton the first of the week.

A baby boy was born to Mr. End Mrs. A. Finlayson on July 1st at the Vulcan Municipal Hospital.

parents at Okotoks and Mr. Hyde is near Kirkcaldy.

At the closing of the local school term, the two prizes of four dollars each, donated by the Ensign Women's Institute were won by Bethel Ruark for senior grades and Lorraine Bourque for junior grades.

A very successful demonstration on interior decoration took place in the Ensign school house Friday and Saturday. The demonstration was under the direction of Miss Hutton of the Women's Home Bureau. About twenty ladies attended each day.
Very keen interest was taken and over one hundred beautiful articles were made.

FISHING TRIP TALE

We are accustomed to hearing the disciples of Isaac Walton telling what has become universally known as "fish stories," but this story, although connected with a fishing trip is somewhat different. It seems that a party of prominent Vulcan citizens made up a fishing party over the week end being well supplied with the necessaries for an excursion of this nature. On the way to the appointed place where the unsuspecting fish were to be caught an argument arose as to the correct name of a school passed en route, the principals in the debate being an "Ancient Briton" and an "Anglo Saxon." The former was positive the name of the school "Bear Head" whilst the latter was equally sure the name was "Brae Head." A bet was made (the nature of which we cannot divulge), but at any rate the Anglo Saxon won, no doubt the light was poor and if they were glasses they were probably "steamed up" (the glasses we mean).
The Ancient Briton running true to type did not take this defeat lying down and whilst settling the argument about the name of the school he sprung one on the Anglo-Saxon as to what the number of the School District was. Up to the time of going to press his last debate remains unsettled.

Outside of these amusing incidents the boys really went to fish and came back with the goods (fish, of course; what did you expect?) They had good sport and a fine week-end. Good luck to them.

Mr. J. B. Ross of Coutts was a visitor in town at the week end.

AS YOU LIKE IT

One great blessing of life is that elections do not happen every mid-summer. There is no disputing that they do not mix smoothly with hot weather. At a time when people should have as little as possible to excite them, they are in great mental turmoil trying to sift out the false from the true in federal politics.

It is very depressing to open the paper night after night, only to learn that the country is drifting to ruin. And, after that, it is not particularly convincing to hear on the other hand the conditions were never better.

Nor must the leaders and newspapers be blamed for painting their pictures too black or too rosy. They are lashed to it by the pack, which is ourselves. In elections we crave to hear the worst or the best. A dispassionate statement of affairs does not suit the temper of the masses at such a time. They want strong medicine and though politicians may deplore the frenzy, yet a frenzy it must be.

Many will remember the fate of the lone Conservative elected, when the Alberta Legislature was first formed. At the end of his term, he returned to his electorate, stating calmly that he thought there had been some very good legislation enacted and on the whole, the government was doing nicely. He was snored under so fast! His followers wanted no such mild comment; they wanted strong brew.

So it is the fault of the great mass of voters, if everything takes on exaggerated coloring during election time. They want everything overproof, and most politicians for the sake of expedience, give them what they want.

However, it is not a healthy drink, particularly for midsummer. The cry of ruin has quite as bad a psychological effect, as the other cry that conditions were never better. It will be a good thing for everyone when it is all over.

ELECTION FORECASTS

Already forecasts are being made with regard to the result of the election. The Financial Post recently published two forecasts, one from Conservative sources which gives the Conservatives 122 members in the new parliament or one short of a clear majority. The other is from 3,000 bankers throughout Canada which claims the Liberals will have 113 seats, the Conservatives 98, U.F.A. 9, Liberal-Progressives 7, Progressives 4, Labor 3, Independents 2 and 9 seats in which no forecast can be made. This estimate does not allow for any Liberal gains in British Columbia or Nova Scotia where the Liberal representation is near the vanishing point and where they have hopes of gaining a few seats.

GRANDMA WANTED

This is the season of circuses, picnics and fairs, and as we enter it, we realize that this western country lacks one important element of holiday life. There are not enough grandmothers to go round.

It is not necessary to explain the direct relation between grandmothers and circuses, to anyone who spent his boyhood in close touch with his grandmother's voluminous presence. For grandmother oiled the wheels of every celebration. She supplied the pennies, nickels and dimes that meant merry-go-rounds, boat rides, side-shows, ice cream and popcorn. Sitting quietly in her own chair by the window, she was the active supporter of every festivity.

In the olden days, a grandmother was a treasure chest, not only of unexpected wealth but of sympathy and understanding. She understood why you just had to get to the fair the day the balloon went up, and she understood why it was more exciting to take a lake ride on a steamboat which was condemned, than on any of the safe, new boats. She knew that on all these occasions unexpected money requirements were bound to rise.

So the evening before any big "doings," you found yourself leaning against her chair telling her of all the things you were going to see. And then from a pocket in the infinite folds of her cashmere skirt, she would extract pennies, nickels, maybe dimes. When you started to say "Oh grandma," she would whisper, "Whisht, whisht, not a word to anyone." It was an important secret, that lost not one bit of glamor, even though you learned later that each separate grandchild had gone through the same rite.

Then when the day's excitement was over you could return home, knowing that, though all the other older folk were too busy to listen, grandma would be placidly waiting in her accustomed spot, ready to hear all the tumultuous adventures.

It was no small part of grandma's resourcefulness that, in the heart of the country though she was, and never stirring away from home, she had an apparently inexhaustible store of small change ready for all occasions.

Nowadays, dad starts his small boy out to see the sights with two bits or four bits and the warning "See that you make that do." He does not realize as a real grandmother does, that four nickels and maybe five coppers are infinitely more money. Besides they jingle so excitingly in one's pocket.

Grandmothers are altogether such a delightful, even vital factor in children's lives, that a child without one—as so many are in this country—is a child cheated.

And there is no hope that the condition will be completely remedied for another generation.

"Vetcraft" is the trade name of a factory with branch in Lethbridge where only disabled veterans are employed. The products turned out are all manner of toys as well as ironing boards, tables, shoe boxes, etc. All the men employed are pensioners with disability ranging from 15 to 75 per cent., many of whom would not be employable in the ordinary labor market.

There are a string of these shops over the Dominion, under the control of the Dept. of Pensions. The articles turned out are well made, hand-somely designed and durable and all bear the distinguished Vetcraft label and stamp. They compare most favorably with similar imported products.

NOT CONTESTING

At the convention of Liberals of the Macleod riding held at Macleod, Wednesday afternoon, a resolution was passed that the Liberals would not contest this constituency in the Federal election.

Noted Comedy-Success to Open Canadian Chautauqua

SCENE FROM "BROKEN DISHES"

"Broken Dishes," the popular Broadway comedy by Martin Flavin, which will be presented at the coming Canadian Chautauqua here, seems to strike a responsive chord in the heart of everyone. Pa Bumstead, the central figure in the play, is one of the most lovable characters to reach the stage in a decade. For twenty years Pa has been as meek as a lamb in his own home, but events transpire which cause him to pluck up his courage and roar like a lion, to the intense surprise of the Bumstead family.

"Broken Dishes" is a very human comedy, filled with laughter, romance and pathos. It will be presented here by the well-known Martin Erwin Players of Canada.

JULY AND THE HOUSEWIFE

The mere mention of this month conjures up visions of heat—stifling heat—with its attendant loss of energy and the will "to do."

The eternal cycle of cleaning, washing and cooking takes on a rather formidable aspect at this time. The dust settles almost faster than one can manage. Dust and duster seem on a merry-go-round.

Washing—so much of it in the hot summer months—will ruin any woman's day. Cooking instead of a delight becomes a hardship.

But this need not be!

There are electrical servants for almost every household task. They will lighten your labor.

Do not throw away time and health on tasks than can be done for a few cents a day, the cost of your electric service.

Prince Launches Ship

Before an immense gathering, H. R. H. the Prince of Wales launched the 42,000-ton Canadian Pacific liner Empress of Britain, largest steamship in the British Empire, from the Clydebank yards, June 11. The picture, snapped as the huge vessel had just taken the water, was transmitted to this continent by radio a few seconds later. Millions of listeners in from all parts of the world heard the Prince make the address at the launching and also the address of E. W. Beatty, chairman and president of the Canadian Pacific Railway, who followed His Royal Highness.

CARES FOR ITS OWN

C.P.R. Keeps Observant Eye on Any Distinguishing Deed of Employees

In recognition of his valorous attempt at life saving in the Highwood river last August, Clifford Kneeshaw C.P.R. fireman was presented last week with a parchment from the Royal Canadian Humane Society.

This incident is the one in which Arnold Prosser succeeded in rescuing Mrs. Hollingsworth. It will be remembered that at the time Mrs. Hollingsworth was struggling against drowning, a C.P.R. freight was moving south over the bridge. Mr. Kneeshaw the fireman, seeing the situation jumped into the river, weighted as he was with boots and clothing. His valiant effort was however handicapped by his clothing, and in a few moments he was battling for his own life. In the meantime Arnold Prosser reached the woman and saved her.

Many local people have been curious as to the identity of the fireman and have felt that some recognition was due his remarkably courageous act.

So it is a satisfaction to know that the C.P.R. keeps a paternal eye out, for any such outstanding effort and has secured for the young man the precious parchment.

The presentation was made by Andrew Halkett, general superintendent of the Alberta C.P.R. district.

CATTLE RUSTLING

Cattle rustling under modern conditions is taking on an elusive air most exasperating to livestock organizations. Livestock men of Alberta, Saskatchewan, Wyoming and Montana, are giving the situation their utmost attention. In the old days the movements of rustlers were comparatively slow and hampered, but in these days of truck driving, the unhappy victims may be transported bodily from their rightful home overnight and marketed a couple of hundred miles away by morning.

Fortunately the menace is more or less controlled in this immediate area, owing to the fact that the rustlers must keep to the trail, but through the Red Deer country and the Goose Lake line, great tracts of open, unfenced land—is parts of Saskatchewan, Wyoming and Montana, the twentieth century rustlers are causing heavier losses than timber wolves and all combined forms of menace. Our own Livestock Association has been considering methods and means of curbing the thieves and its seriousness may be realized when Supt. Bryan head of the A.P.P. said that to handle the trouble as he would like to do, he would want 200 men on patrol. At the present time officers have authority to stop all trucks on the road after midnight in certain areas of the province.

In sympathy over the sorrows of the stockmen, the Winnipeg Free Press contrasts amusingly the good old days of plain two fisted rustling and the intricacies of the modern fancy style. We quote the Free Press:

"The veteran Alberta cattle rancher Senator Dan Riley, president of the Western Stock Growers has to listen in sorrow to his fellow ranchers' shamefully admitting their inability to fight against the latest merciless system of rustling.

"This modern depth of depravity brings remorse to old timers who knew the time when they could curse, but not despise, the bold thieving rascals of their grazing stock.

"When the rustling used to be largely a matter of shifting a brand or enticing a handful of choice stock into pastures green and distant, it is now a matter of lifting the beast bodily. Pirates seeking meat to peddle, sweep through the night, scudding over the prairie in high powered trucks. A few likely young head are spotted, despatched and whisked away.

"This kind of thing can be done under motor transport where it couldn't be when men had to ride. The old thieves, at least ran a sporting chance of being caught. The prowlers of these nights leave nothing but the scent of their fumes.

"It is not easy to catch up with a missing beast lying in the well of a truck, hurrying through the night. That carcass is a hundred miles away before sun up. The rustler is selling his booty in another part of the province before the fence rider at the ranch has saddled his horse.

"But before a hold can be got on the hair of these motor riding hustlers, changes must be made in the laws that were good enough to put bolder rustlers of a freer day in the coop.

"It is proposed that before any butcher can sell a piece of meat he must produce the hide of its carcass to a brand inspector and that the hide shall then be disposed of. Or when a live animal is anywhere on the prairies being moved by truck, the provincial police has right to demand evidence of ownership. The only way to get after these modern thieves is to hog-tie the butchers."

"Ghosts of the old ranchers who used to line up to the bars of the cow town to lie so gloriously about the number of head they had running, must have sighed at this sad dilemma in which their survivors find themselves, without one of them being able to lift a finger to call for the consoling treat of all the fellow sufferers cling to the bar."

All the live stock organizations of Alberta, Saskatchewan and N. W. States are urging that all hides and carcasses be marked by government officials; that the ears be left on the hides and that stock inspection areas be enlarged to include recognized range areas.

A Barons girl, Miss Jane Popham, captured the Nellie McClung trophy in speaking contest at Calgary.

Guess the nationality of the man who kept asking all night long at the King meeting in Calgary: "Hoo about yon five cent piece?"

A hat that has been through a large heavy evening, next morning carries an infinitely more abject look of shame than its owner. A hard rim straw hat can keep a secret best.

THE HON. PETER HEENAN

Who at one time ran an engine out of Kenora, says that all this rumor about hard times is largely a state of mind and anyway, it is mainly election talk. We only think we are hard up over there and he blames the American Government for it. Says that when they made their paper money smaller they took the margin out. As Canada does so much trucking and trading with the Yankees our margin is gone too.

Be as it may, I do know that all this talk about hard times has made the manufacturer remove his margin. We are today selling at $25.00 a Silver Plated Tea Set that last year sold for $35.00 and other lines are reduced in proportion. You do buy here for less.

ORIGIN OF NAME

How the Name Liberal-Conservative Was Adopted. The Twain Shall Never Meet

To add to the natural and inevitable vexations of election time, the term "Liberal Conservative," as used by the Conservative party is contributing its share in misunderstanding. Although this term is the formal "full" name of all true blue Conservatives, it might be misleading in indicating an alliance between Liberals and Conservatives. Nothing however could be farther from fact. Liberals are Liberals, Reformers or clear Grits, Conservatives are Liberal-Conservative, or Tory. The twain shall never meet.

Eastern Canadians whose memories are functioning nicely, will recall that it was early in 1860 that the Liberal-Conservative party was first christened as such, at the instigation of the astute John A. Macdonald, and has had continuous life since that time. It is however, rather a large mouthful for Westerners who do not take to hyphenated titles, and it is revived only on formal occasions, but it has its parliamentary basis and is the legitimate honorable parent of all Conservatives or Tories. It is also directly opposed to the Liberal party.

To delve back to the origin of the two main Canadian political parties, one must turn to the history of Eastern Canada after 1854.

At that time there were the "High Tories," remnants of the old family compact group, a moderate Conservative following under John A. Macdonald; a moderate Liberal party and a radical Liberal party made up of those who had rebelled against autocracy in 1837 and their sympathizers.

In Quebec there was the "parti bleu" composed of French Canadians fundamentally Conservative; the "parti rouge" with radical or republican leanings and lastly, the English-speaking minority.

These people made up the political life of Upper and Lower Canada.

In 1854 the moderate Liberal administrator was defeated. The governor called Sir Allan MacNab of the "high Tories" to form a government. MacNab wisely called on John A. Macdonald to help him form a government.

With infinite skill and adroitness, Macdonald set to work moulding into line all who were not too antagonistic to his progressive Conservative policies. The moderate Liberals and many of the large "parti bleu" block fell into line easily, with the moderate Conservatives. His best achievement was in Quebec, where he finally won over no great majority even of the French Canadian rebels, who formed a cornerstone of his success. To this party made up of Conservatives "parti bleu" and moderate Liberals, John A. Macdonald diplomatically gave the name Liberal-Conservative which has had a continuous existence from that day to this.

Opposed to this Liberal-Conservative party were the "Clear Grits" of Upper Canada who had sympathized with William Lyon MacKenzie government, and also the "parti rouge" or radicals of Quebec. From this nucleus has grown the Liberal party of today.

OUR MINISTER BUSY

Hon. George Hoadley Returned from East After Numerous Accomplishments

Having accomplished a number of missions taking him to Ottawa, Montreal, New York and elsewhere, Mr. Hoadley has returned to his office at Edmonton.

In regard to his conference with the Rockefeller Foundation in New York, the minister reports that Dr. Covington of the Foundation, will be out here next month. Dr. Covington will be remembered for his splendid presentation of the Health Unit project two years ago, when he addressed citizens of High River. The proposed High River and Red Deer centres are in accord with the work of the Foundation and more definite steps will be taken when he re-visits Alberta. The Health Unit centres deal particularly with preventive treatment, such as inspection of school children, prevention of epidemics and general health inspection.

Another matter of concern provincially, is the subject of radium treatment for cancer, and a centralized treatment of the disease. Dr. Orr of the University of Alberta, is at present in Scandinavian countries studying the methods of treatment there, and Mr. Hoadley conferred, while in New York with Dr. Russel of the Rockefeller Foundation in the same matter. The outcome will be made known later.

The National Dept. of Health was interviewed regarding a Convalescent ward for the military section of the University Hospital, Edmonton. If and when such a section be added to the Hospital, Mr. Hoadley presented the desirability of having the building placed so that it would be in direct touch with the hospital proper, so that immediate treatment would be always available. He was assured that when the addition was definitely decided on, his presentations would be borne in mind.

NOTICE

In the Estate of Henry Willard, late of near Queenstown, in the Province of Alberta, Farmer, Deceased.

NOTICE is hereby given that all persons having claims upon the Estate of the above named Henry Willard, who died on the 29th day of May, 1930, are required to file with Nettie Alice Willard, of Queenstown, Alberta, Sole Executrix of the said Estate, by the 1st day of September, 1930, a full statement, duly verified by a Statutory Declaration, of their claims and any securities held by them, and that after that date the Executrix will distribute the assets of the deceased among the parties entitled thereto, having regard only to the claims of which notice has been so filed, or which have been brought to her knowledge.

DATED this 24th day of June, A.D. 1930.

M. W. MacDONALD
Solicitor for the said Executrix,
July 3, 3-c Arrowwood, Alberta.

The limit was struck the other day, when two families of five members in each, were found stealing a ride on a freight train. They had their trunks aboard the freight car, and were all set for a through trip on the main line, when caught. They are being deported.

CROP REPORT

The high temperature of the past few days has been most welcome in the northern and western parts of the province; the moisture supply is abundant. Crops in this area have made excellent growth, but continued cool weather in June has tended to retard progress toward maturity. The present warm, bright weather will correct this condition.

The central eastern area may be described as patchy. In some parts the recovery has been remarkable, due to frequent showers. At other points, less favored, recovery is only partial. On the whole the crop outlook continues to show improvement.

Along the line of the Calgary-Macleod railway there is promise of a normal crop. Eastward and farther south crops have suffered from drought during the past fortnight. Rainfall at various points over this area, in the past few days, has brought a measure of relief and a more optimistic outlook. About 20 per cent. of wheat is in head and the remainder in the shot blade.

Hail damage has occurred at several points in the province, but the areas involved are not large. Coarse grains are making favorable progress. Haying is general throughout the province, the crop being reported slightly below average on account of the cold dry spring.

Sugar beets are reported to be a good stand and developing normally. Pastures are good and livestock making excellent gains.

Sheep are said to make the best wool in the summer, and that any unfavorable conditions such as weather poor-feed, etc., directly lowers the quality of the wool.

Major Strange of Fenn, world wheat growing champion, has been appointed director of educational work at the Searle Grain Co., Winnipeg.

"Pollyanna" to Be Presented at Canadian Chautauqua

SCENE FROM "POLLYANNA"

"Pollyanna," the outstanding comedy-drama to be presented at the coming Canadian Chautauqua here by the Martin Erwin Players of Canada, is based on Eleanor Porter's famous novel of the same name. Pollyanna, with her sunny optimism and her philosophy of gladness, has been transferred to the stage by Catherine Chisholm Cushing in the play which will be seen here with extraordinary fidelity to the character in Miss Porter's novel.

Here is a great play, filled with laughter, pathos, gripping drama and romance, and leaving the audience in a glow of good humor.

THE WAY TO GREATER
GRAIN PROFITS

McCORMICK - DEERING
HARVESTER - THRESHER

There are more McCormick-Deering harvester-threshers in use than all other makes combined. This fact proves the high quality of the machine and its capacity for doing a thorough job of harvesting and threshing. While the machine is similar in design to the machine built previously, a number of refinements have been added which save grain and facilitate the handling of the machine.

The McCormick-Deering harvester-thresher has always been famous for its cylinder and concave construction. The cylinder is mounted high in the machine, which permits immediate separation of the grain by gravity upon the concaves and grates. There are five square feet of grating surface beneath the cylinder and main beater. Full advantage is taken of the great centrifugal force of the cylinder and main beater revolving above the grates to separate the grain from the straw and force the grain through the grates. A short conveyor directly underneath the concave elevates the grain and delivers it upon the grain pan which is constantly agitated, and the grain passes on to the shoe with the lighter material well separated.

Ask to be shown the new features that make McCormick-Deering harvester-threshers better than ever.

Some hard fights are in progress in Alberta in connection with the coming Federal elections. There are no acclamations in the sixteen seats. A number of straight U.F.A.-Tory battles are being waged with the Liberals putting up no opposition.

In Lethbridge, A. G. Baillim, Liberal candidate has entered the field, following the defeat at the U.F.A. nomination of L. H. Jelliff, M.P. Mr. Jelliff had been friendly to the King government and lost in nomination to T. O. King, U.F.A. of Raymond. The Conservative candidate is Brig. Gen. Stewart of Lethbridge.

ENJOYED SCOTT

The professor had just finished an evening's talk on Sir Walter Scott and his works when a lady said: "Oh, professor, I have so enjoyed your talk. Scott is a great friend of mine." "Indeed," said the professor, "what one of his books did you like best?" "Oh," answered the lady, "I haven't read any of his books, but I am so fond of his emulsion and have used a lot of that."—Toronto Telegram.

Celebrated Humorist Coming at Chautauqua

Jess Pugh—who will present his imitable entertainment at the coming Canadian Chautauqua here this season—has been called the Prince of Fun-Makers. If laughter, as has been said, is good for the soul, then this man is truly a mender of souls.

Jess Pugh has such a buoyant temperament, such an infectious laugh and engaging smile that he dissolves like magic the most stubborn case of blues.

JESS PUGH

To call him a reader or an impersonator is sadly inadequate. He is so much more than these terms imply. Yet he is a finished artist, with the shades and high-lights of character portrayal at his fingertips.

Jess Pugh has a keen understanding of human nature and an inherent good-will that permit him to caricature without malice the various types he finds amusing. There is never a sting in a Pugh portrayal.

One of the most popular figures in Mr. Pugh's gallery of characters is the snuff-stricken reader, a masterpiece of sheer comedy so cleverly presented that audiences roar with mirth at the plight of the luckless young amateur performer in his struggles to ignore the effect of a large dose of snuff.

Work was commenced this week in erecting a 60 foot steel beacon at the top of the Hudson's Bay, Calgary. This will direct a 2,000,000 candle power beam on the municipal airport.

The limit was struck the other day, when two families of five members in each, were found stealing a ride on a freight train. They had their trunks aboard the freight car, and were all set for a through trip on the main line, when caught. They are being deported.

THE LAST STRAW

Everyone agrees that this is a "next year country," but the term usually implies a sort of general optimism. However, "next year" is according to entomologists carrying with it a serious threat to Alberta farmers.

All are being warned, that weather conditions in the early season of 1930 have been such as to practically ensure an enormous increase of the "pale western cutworm."

The outbreak is likely to be most severe from Edmonton south to the Lethbridge-Medicine Hat line and east of the Macleod-Edmonton line.

For guidance, the following information is given: Any fields in which the soil surface is crusted and undisturbed from August 1 to September 15, will be free of cutworms next spring, because the adult moth of the cutworm lays its eggs in August and early September. The eggs are laid always in soft, dusty soil and any fields with this surface-crusted will be avoided by the moths. In most soils a light rain is enough to form such a crust.

Any fields in which the soil is broken or disturbed in August and early September are likely to be infested with cutworms. Fields in crop that must be harvested in August, can hardly escape having the surface crust destroyed. If the crop could be cut and stooked before August and could be left undisturbed till September, the soil might become encrusted and the moths fly elsewhere.

The Lethbridge Entomological Department gives fuller information.

GREATEST CITIES

The five largest cities in the world are given in this order by the World Almanac according to population:

Greater London	7,742,212
New York	6,601,292
Greater Berlin	4,013,588
Chicago	3,373,753
Paris	2,838,416

That word "Greater" in front of two places leaves a rather indefinite area, and the same word should have been placed before New York, too.

Old London itself is a comparatively small place, coming within the space of about one mile, but "Greater London" covers a large amount of territory. Just what space is taken in we do not know, but it is a fact that one can go from the heart of London almost the entire distance to Runcymede and Windsor without coming to very much indication that the city has ceased.

Wheat harvesting has been under way for a week in Ontario.

"Canadian Markets for the Canadian Farmer" and aid in the recovery of foreign markets

During the last 10 years Canada's exports of livestock have decreased 65%.

In the year ended March 1930 we imported 42,000,000 pounds of butter and 41,000,000 pounds of meat. In 1920 we exported to England 220,000,000 pounds of pork. During the Nine Months ended March 1930 we only exported 21,000,000 pounds to the same place.

Private Harold Peat to Speak Here at Canadian Chautauqua

Famous Canadian Writer Will Deliver His Great Lecture
"The Inexcusable Lie"

"Let us elevate the pursuits of peace, put bundles of light into its varying elements, make it thrilling, make it heroic," says Private Harold R. Peat, who will give his great lecture "The Inexcusable Lie" at the coming Canadian Chautauqua here. "The poets, the historians, the artists and musicians can make their contributions here. Your boy and mine will want peace when we have been able to interpret peace to make it at least as interesting as war, at least as heroic and as dramatic."

PRIVATE HAROLD PEAT

Private Peat is a world-famous figure—one of the outstanding personalities that came out of the Great War. He served on the Western Front as a private with the Third Battalion, First Infantry, of his native Canada, was wounded twice and gassed in the first gas attack of the War.

No one could term him a pacifist. He knows war—its horrors, its stupidity, its cruelty. He believes if the children of to-day were given the true picture of war, the world would become peace-minded in the future. Wars will continue as long as war exists in the heart of man, is the creed of Private Peat.

Private Peat has lectured throughout Australia, New Zealand, the United States and Canada. He is, perhaps, more in demand to-day than any other speaker upon the lecture platform. Both in his books, which have been exceptionally popular, and upon the platform he presents his ideas with clear-cut directness, and with a vividness that is tremendously convincing.

"His talk was full of sound sense," says the Toronto Star, "and the many telling points were interspersed with much humor. He was listened to with much interest, and at the conclusion of his lecture was accorded long applause."

"Mr. Peat has that indefinable thing called personality. His talk was heartily applauded by those who heard him," states the Winnipeg Free Press.

CANADIAN FLAG

In the very live issue of a distinctive Canadian flag, Mr. Hugh Savage, president Weekly Newspapers Association, has been more publicly and consistently active, than possibly any other Canadian.

Some months ago, he published in Maclean's Magazine, his argument for a Canadian flag. Immediately there exploded through the same magazine, innumerable expressions of opinion for and against. The vast majority were strongly in favor, and the favorite argument of those against any distinctive Canadian emblem was that they had fought and bled for many generations under the Union Jack.

Mr. Savage has waited to let the bulk of the articulate comment come to the top. And in last issue of Maclean's, he has replied to these arguments in another strong article: "Wanted: A Canadian Flag."

This is a question in which every Canadian is greatly interested. And in case all our readers have not followed Mr. Savage's article, we are quoting extracts therefrom, to show how falsely based is this illusion of "fighting under the Union Jack."

He tackles first his well known friend Jake of U. E. Loyalist stock, who claims that for generations some of his family have "fought and bled" under the Union Jack in Canada. "Our Union Jack is not the flag for whose sake Jake's British ancestors left American colonies and came to Canada in 1783.

Our has incorporated a third, that of Ireland, since 1801. Their flag was that of Wolfe and Cook and Vancouver.

Jake's forebears were granted land in Canada. Were the title deeds sealed with the flag for which they suffered so acutely? No. The seal is "an ensign bearing anchor and sword crossed on a calumet of peace, encircled by a wreath of olives, surmounted by an imperial crown and the Union of Great Britain," which means an ensign bearing the Union Jack and—here is the point—differences and augmentations to represent the effectiveness of the Canadian connection.

Jake's people fought and bled. What was their reward? Three British war medals relate to service in Canada. That covering 1793-1814 bears no flag or Canadian device. The Canadian General Service Medal, 1866-70, with bars for the Fenian Raids and the Red River Expedition, bears on its obverse not the Union Jack but an ensign similar to the Canadian Red Ensign, with the old arms of Canada in the fly. It is the Union Jack differentiated to denote Canada. On the medal for the Riel Rebellion maple leaves are introduced.

In the defense of their own land, in British campaign in Egypt and South Africa, in the World War, Canadians, like all other British folk under arms, served symbolically under the Union Jack, I emphasize "symbolically," for our sailors fought and died actually under the White Ensign; our airmen bore the distinctive badge of their service. If a Canadian soldier could be said to be serving under anything, he was under the colors of his unit and they, with one notable exception, were left in Westminster Abbey or elsewhere.

Were these colors the Union Jack? They were not.

A Garbled Piece of Bunting
Here then are flags under which Canadian soldiers may be said actually to have served. What are they? That carried by General Currie's orderly is the Canadian Blue Ensign, authorized to be flown only on Canadian government vessels—a sea flag. The Mons flag is intended to be the Canadian Red Ensign—another sea flag—but is of a design which is without authority and is, in fact, an attempt by some flag maker to quarter the arms of the Canadian provinces. He omitted Alberta and Saskatchewan and depicted Prince Edward Island and British Columbia incorrectly. He placed above and around the shield a crown and maple wreath, which happens to be the distinctive and sole right of the Governor-General.

Is it any credit to the government and people of Canada that in the hour of the crowning triumph of Canadian arms there was no properly authorized distinctive Canadian flag to proclaim the fact from Mons city hall? Had the Australians or New Zealanders taken the town, the proper flag of their Dominion would have floated there correctly and in accordance with British and international usage. Canada was represented by a garbled piece of bunting intended to be a sea flag!

Maple Leaf Design
Many Maclean's correspondents are supported by the Canadian Legion, the Native Sons of Canada and other national organizations in desiring that a maple leaf design appear in the proposed Dominion flag. The maple leaf as the badge of Canada is recognized the world over.

Overseas our athletes and delegations of all sorts wear this badge. On box and package it proclaims Canadian goods. As their distinctive badge most of the C.E.F. like their predecessors in other wars, wore the maple leaf. It has long been utilized in Canadian heraldry, on war medals and regimental colors, on the personal flags of the governors of our Do-

Henry Ford Characterizes Thomas Edison as "The Greatest American"

Mr. Ford's tribute to Thomas Edison in July Cosmopolitan is the tribute of one great man to another. The great inventor encouraged Henry Ford when few people considered his experiments worth anything. But this does not figure amongst the reasons for greatness. Mr. Ford says: "Edison has done more toward abolishing poverty than have all the reformers since the beginning of the world. He has provided man with the means to help himself. First, his direct contributions of inventions, the tools of labor; second, his example in linking science with everyday life, and demonstrating that every problem may be solved."

Edison was first to practice the plan of fixing a sales price on what he thought an article could be made for, then forcing the cost down through volume production to finally declare a profit. When Edison first made incandescent lights, he agreed to make them for 40 cents each though they actually cost him $1.25 to make. It took three years of experimenting to bring the manufacturing cost down to the point where there could be a profit. But by that time demand for lamps had so increased that one year's profit of 3 cents on each lamp, wiped out the losses of the three preceding years.

It's far better for a man to keep his mouth shut and be thought a fool than to open it and remove all doubt.

Sir A. Conan Doyle, celebrated novelist and historian, died at his home in England on Monday, aged 71 years. He was best known for his detective story, Sherlock Holmes.

Union and its provinces, in the arms of Ontario and Quebec, and also in those of Canada, where the color is green on a white field. Under three British sovereigns Canadian postage stamps have borne the maple leaf to the ends of the earth. Our coinage similarly proclaims that the maple leaf is the peculiarly Canadian device. Flags should embody the history of the country they represent. They should record by symbols the path along which a new nation has come into being. One of the finest designs yet suggested is that showing the Union Jack in the first quarter and the green maple leaf on the white fly.

The white fly or field, has similarity to the old sea-flag of France which bore the first Canadian immigrants to Canada. Again, white indicates a start with a clean sheet. It stands for peace. The purity of the bunting will become soiled, but will not the need for an occasional wash teach anew the significance of our country's symbol? How many dirty flags are now in use here? White is the blessed cloak of "Our Lady of the Snows" as she stores water for our wheels, prepares seed beds for our grain, and changes northern waterways into hard roads for freight-machinery to open our northern treasure house.

A green maple leaf is the sign of virility, youth and spring. Eastern maples turn red in the fall; those in British Columbia turn gold. Green is common to all. Visibility is essential for flags. On land they do not always fly free. They must be distinctive even when drooping. Whatever the color may be, the single maple leaf on a white ground would tell at a glance that the flag was the emblem of Canada. This design is in harmony with the purely Canadian device in the Dominion coat of arms.

Reforms come slowly in Canada. When they do arrive we awake and say: "Why on earth didn't we do this years ago?" So it will be with the flag question. Already some are claiming the glory. It matters not who gets the credit so long as Canada gets the flag.

Two Lancashire girls arrived in Canada on the Canadian Pacific liner Duchess of York, en route to Pekisko, Alberta, where they will start their Canadian careers on the "E.P. ranch." Major Ashton of Soldier Settlement Board, Ottawa, said that the 500 soldier settlers in the Peace River country, have since 1925 been more punctual in pay than those in any part of Canada.

OUR NATIVE ART

Many Canadian Curios. Supposedly Indian Work Come from Japan and Germany

It is rather a joke on tourists and Canadians themselves, who ecstatically lug home souvenirs of supposedly Indian craftsmanship, to learn that many of these are made in Japan or Germany.

The little totem poles, so largely sold in northern summer resorts and so cleverly reproducing the original totems of the North-Pacific Coast, are actually made in Japan.

The little Indian dolls with leathery brown faces and coal black hair, do look native born, but after all, were made in Germany. The moccasins slippers all beaded and trimmed in Indian style, are largely the product of Quebec village workshop.

The leather goods of great variety are made in Toronto and Winnipeg in great quantity.

To be sure, the Indian must not be robbed of all honor. He has furnished the background, the designs and the coloring.

The Pacific Coast Indians were particularly gifted in clever designing based on nature. Their carvings in horn, copper and wood have furnished the white men with ideas. Their flair for beadwork and color, for buckskin and leather, has been copied by manufacturers on the look-out for ideas. And it is rather a pathetic fact that the white interloper has capitalized many Indian ideas and in Eastern factories can turn out beadwork, leather and moccasins in bulk and superior to that of the Indian.

In fact an Edmonton merchant feeling that native art should have a chance, ordered some fancy moccasins from the Indians of the Athabasca country. But when the goods arrived, they were genuine Indian moccasins all right, but were crude, smelly, uneven and generally far inferior to the soft dainty products from Quebec factories and were higher priced.

However there is one art in which the Indians do excel. Their basket making is unique and beautiful and much of the basket weave work is authentic Indian. Also some of the regular moose hide moccasin work is Indian. But take it all in all the bulk of Indian curios have many other origins than "native."

But the inheritance from the earliest inhabitant which stands pre-eminent is the Indian canoe, which is almost a trade mark of Canadian outdoor life.

HOME OIL EARNINGS

According to the Financial Post advices from Calgary state that total production of Home Oil Co. wells is not keeping up. It is generally conceded that the dividend is not at present being earned. Payment of royalties and other expenses can be looked after by present production, but it is not believed there would be a surplus sufficient to maintain the dividend at a $100 a share annually. Home Oil Co. has 880,000 of no par value common shares outstanding. There were four 20 cent dividends in 1929 and one 25 cent dividend on May 5, 1930. Dividends earned in the 13 months ending 1929, were only 81 cents a share against 80 cents a share paid. The dividends are payable at discretion of directors.

In 18 of the 21 seats in Saskatchewan, Conservatives will stand for election. Liberals are entering the fight in every constituency, while the U.F.A.'s have entered 13 contests.

EMPIRE TRADE EXTENDS

Canadian agriculture is ever seeking new markets and producers in other parts of the Empire are working toward an extension of the market for those of their products Canada needs. Information received by the Minister of Agriculture at Ottawa, shows that during the past year 208 carloads of bananas were shipped into Western Canada from the British West Indies. Word now comes that the first shipment of oranges and lemons from New South Wales reached Vancouver on July 15. Canada reciprocates with her exports of potatoes to the West Indies and with shipments of apples and onions to the Antipodes.
